

CHAPTER IX.

THE GIRLS' GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

THE first of the old trusts dealt with by the commissioners under Mr. Forster's Endowed Schools Act of 1870, was the Free Grammar School of Charles II. at Bradford. In the scheme drawn up by the commissioners for the management of the boys' school, two of the clauses run as follows :—"This foundation shall consist of two branches, one for the education of boys, and the other for the education of girls."

"From and after the date of this scheme, or within three years from such date, the governors shall appropriate the annual sum of £200, and on the determination or failure of the pension hereafter contemplated for the present schoolmaster or that assigned to the late usher, the further sum of £50, for the establishment and maintenance of a girls' school, and such school shall be organised, supported, and managed in accordance with directions to be hereafter set forth in a supplementary scheme." The supplementary scheme here alluded to was drafted, after careful consideration, by the committee of the Ladies' Educational Association; and it is mainly to this committee that Bradford is indebted for the Girls' Grammar School. It was felt, however, that the endowment allotted to the girls by the Commission was insufficient for the establishment of a first-grade school, and therefore the ladies and gentlemen most interested in the movement raised subscriptions to the amount of £5000, through the generosity of the leading men of Bradford, notably Sir Titus Salt, Bart., Henry Brown, Esq., and Isaac Holden, Esq. With this sum they bought, in June, 1873, the premises, then the property of Mr. Watson, at the corner of Hallfield Road, and presented them to the commissioners to be added to the trust.

It was not until July, 1875, that the building actually passed into the hands of the governors, but by dint of great energy it was, in two months, adapted for the purposes required, at a cost of £2000, which was paid by subscription before the end of the year.

The need for such a school, and the appreciation of its value by the people of Bradford were shown by the following notice, issued to parents in the newspaper :—"The number of pupils entered for the ensuing term is so large that no further entries can now be made." And this was the way in which Bradford came to be the first place in the country to establish a first-grade endowed Girls' Grammar School.

Miss Porter, from the Chelsea High School, was appointed head-mistress, and the school was opened on September 27th, 1875, with 112 girls, and four assistant mistresses. The school was formally opened on the morning of Wednesday, September 29th, by Lady Frederick Cavendish ; Henry Brown, Esq., occupied the chair, and Lord Frederick Cavendish, W. E. Forster, Esq., M.P., the Rev. W. H. Keeling, M.A., Robert Kell, Esq., W. E. Glyde, Esq., and Miss Porter addressed the meeting. In the course of his speech, Mr. Forster, after referring to the great educational advantages which have recently been extended to women, said : "I should be very glad if I should have the great honour of sending the first scholar to one of these colleges which have been established at Cambridge." In the evening a public meeting was held in St. George's Hall. The Mayor, Henry Mitchell, Esq., presided, and addresses were delivered by Sir Matthew Wilson, Bart., W. E. Forster, Esq., M.P., Dr. Hodgson (Professor of Political Economy at the University of Edinburgh), John Morley, Esq. (Editor of the Fortnightly Review), R. Kell, Esq., and F. S. Powell, Esq.

Mr. Forster moved :—

"That this meeting views with satisfaction the establishment of a public day school for girls in Bradford, and is convinced that it will supply a want long felt in this district, by bringing a first-class education within the reach of many families by whom it has hitherto been unattainable."

He congratulated the governors on having got a share of the endowment of the Grammar School foundation, but said that he did not think the interference of the Endowed Schools Commission ought to have been necessary to obtain it, for the charter granted by Charles II. to the Bradford school provided that the school should be "established for ever for the better teaching and bringing up of children and youth in grammar and other good learning and literature."

Mr. Powell, at the conclusion of his speech, remarked : "Success is absolutely sure, because that which Bradford has begun, Bradford will undoubtedly, in steadfastness and earnestness of purpose, carry to a successful issue."

During the first term the school, no doubt was closely watched, and its progress apparently gave satisfaction, for, at the beginning of 1876, sixty new pupils entered, and three new classes were formed.

Already scholarships for the Grammar School had been offered, one by Henry Brown, Esq., and two by the governors, to be competed for by pupils in the elementary schools; and, in 1876, Sir Titus Salt, Bart., and subsequently Henry Brown, Esq., established two scholarships, each of the annual value of £100, to enable girls from the Grammar School to carry on their studies at the colleges for the higher education of women.

These scholarships are open to competition by all girls in the VI. Form, who have been in the school three years, and the award is made upon the result of the Midsummer Examination. Two have been awarded yearly since 1878, as follows:

1878	Jessie Sallitt—Forster Scholar.
	² Hannah Lister.
1879	³ Marion Greenwood.
	⁴ Kate Tennant.
1880	⁵ Gertrude McCroben.
	⁶ Fannie Gwyther.
1881	⁷ Bertha Bell.
	⁸ Lillie Sallitt.
1882	Rosa Womersley } M. A. Byles }	Postponed.

3. Girton College, Cambridge.
5. Newnham College, Cambridge.
7. Somerville Hall, Oxford.

2. Girton College, Cambridge.
4. Newnham College, Cambridge.
6. Somerville Hall, Oxford.
8. Bloomsbury School of Art, London.

There has not yet been time to gain many College Honours, but the school has reason to be proud of its first laurels. Marion Greenwood has passed the First Part of the Natural Science Tripos in the First Class; Hannah Lister the Mathematical Tripos with 3rd class Honours, and other distinctions will be found in the footnotes to the list of pupils in the appendix.

In 1880 the governors of the Girls' Grammar School adopted a memorial appealing to the Syndicate appointed by the University of Cambridge, to grant degrees to women as well as to men; and we hope that the day is not far distant when this will be done.

At Christmas, 1880, Miss Porter left Bradford to take the headmistresship of the Girls' High School at Douglas, Isle of Man, and she has since become principal of the Bedford Girls' School. She was followed by Miss Lee, from Burton-on-Trent, who only remained six months, and was succeeded by Miss Stocker, the present headmistress.

The course of the school since its commencement seven years ago, has been one of very gratifying prosperity, and we look forward with hope and confidence to a very bright future, having already begun to fulfil the prophecy of seven years ago :—

“It seems to us quite probable that those among us who at the distance of many years shall look back upon this time, will regard yesterday (the Opening Day) as one of the brightest days in the history of Bradford.”

CHAPTER X.

UNDER THE NEW SCHEME, 1871-1882.

THE draft of the new scheme, as presented by the Endowed School Commissioners, gave rise to a vehement discussion in Bradford. The main questions to be decided were whether the School should be of the first or second grade, and whether Greek should be taught or not. The Commissioners (chief of whom was Lord Lyttelton) were compelled to give way, and the School was made one of the first grade and Greek was admitted. That it should be necessary in a town standing eighth in Great Britain in point of population, to send boys elsewhere to receive the highest education, would have been a disgrace to our borough; and Bishop Ryan, Mr. W. Byles, and Sir Jacob Behrens deserve the lasting gratitude of the town for their successful efforts to preserve the School as one of the highest grade. The Endowment which had hitherto consisted of landed estates were now transformed into Government Securities, and nominally realised an annual income of £750, but this is heavily taxed with a pension of £160 to the late Head Master, and is further diminished by the annual payment of £250 to the Girls' Grammar School. The School is therefore now almost entirely dependent on the fees of pupils, as the rest of the money arising from the endowment is expended on the Governors' Scholars and Exhibitioners. The income derived from fees is at present about £4000 per annum.

The New Scheme, as thus amended, became law on August 19th, 1871. The Governing Body was re-constituted on a wider basis, the minimum number of Governors being fixed at 13. Four of the Governors, viz., the Vicar, the Mayor, the Chairman of the School Board, and the President of the Mechanics' Institute, hold office ex-officio. Four are Representative, two from the Town Council and two from the School Board. The remainder, the Co-optative Governors, are, subject to certain conditions, elected for life. After arrangements had been made for the pensioning of the Head and Second Masters, the present Head Master, the Rev. W. H. Keeling, M.A. was appointed in November, 1871, being selected from 135 candidates.

The following facts about our Head Master will be found interesting. Born on February 8th, 1840, at Blackley, Manchester, where his father, the Rev. W. R. Keeling was Rector, in due time he proceeded to Wadham College, Oxford, where he took a First Class in Moderations and a Second Class in Literae Humaniores. After holding the appointments of Sixth Form Master at Bromsgrove and Rossall, he was elected Head Master of the Northampton Grammar School in 1867. While at Northampton he married Henrietta Frances, youngest daughter of the Rev. Sydney Gedge, M.A., Vicar of All Saints' Northampton, and formerly Fellow of St. Catherine's College, Cambridge.

The new School was opened in January, 1872, and occupied temporarily the old High School in Hallfield Road. Twenty-five boys were taken over from the old school, and the number of pupils slowly increased until the new buildings, erected at a cost of upwards of £13,000, were entered upon in June, 1873. After that date the School grew rapidly, and for the last eight years has never numbered fewer than 300 boys. At the present time there are about 360 pupils with a staff of twelve masters, including nine graduates. In 1874, a Gymnasium was built, by public subscription, at the cost of about £3,000, and in raising this money the Head Master was assisted by Mr. V. Sichel and Mr. J. S. Bacchus. The largest contributors were the late Sir Titus Salt, Mr. Henry Mitchell, and the late Sir H. W. Ripley. In 1873, the late Mr. Henry Brown, one of the most munificent benefactors Bradford has yet had, endowed the School with £6,000 to be expended in Scholarships. The late Sir Titus Salt, equally well known for his large-hearted liberality, gave £5,000 for a like purpose in 1873. After a time, it was found that the building erected in 1874 was in many respects ill-adapted to the requirements of the School, the class-room accommodation being especially inconvenient, and the rooms set apart for Laboratory and Art purposes being on too small a scale. Accordingly additions were made in 1878, at a further cost of £10,083. There is now ample provision of every kind, together with complete appliances for 500 boys. In January of 1882 an important change was made in the organization of the School. Hitherto, Latin had been compulsory, and the education given was a compromise between a classical and a modern education. It was found, however, that this was a system ill-adapted to the requirements of the town, especially for boys who had not been well grounded in Latin from an early age, and it was found necessary to meet the opinion which is growing in strength every year, that equal culture can be imparted in a modern course, while a modern course is more immediately useful for boys who are intended for business or for any but the learned professions. At the present time, therefore, the School affords two distinct courses of education, one classical and the other modern, and in the latter, modern languages, science, mathematics, and extra lessons in English take the place of Latin and Greek.

One of the chief objects which the promoters of the reformed School had in view, was the revival of the connection between Bradford and the Universities. This had, in fact, almost died out, and a Bradford boy at Oxford or Cambridge was a rara avis. Within the last nine years about sixty boys have gone to the University, and at the present time there are twenty-one boys in residence at Oxford and Cambridge. In addition to the impetus that this movement derived from the right which the School had of competing for the valuable Lady Hastings' Exhibition (worth £90 a year for 5 years) at Queen's College, Oxford, much additional help has been given by the Brown and Salt Scholarships, and to these three sources the School has been largely indebted for the increase of its University Students. Many valuable scholarships and exhibitions have likewise been won in open competition with other schools, by Bradford boys, who now hold scholarships amounting to £1150 a year. These scholarships have been gained not only for classics, but also for proficiency in more modern subjects such as mathematics, science and history.

In addition to the endowments already named, the School has been much indebted to the Right Honourable W. E. Forster, M.P., for an annual prize of Three Pounds, to be awarded for proficiency in history, as well as for a Scholarship of £20 a year open to boys from Elementary Schools. The late Sir H. W. Ripley, Bart., also gave £500 to be expended in Scholarships for the promotion of Science.

The School now ranks as one of the leading Schools of the country. For some years it has competed with the great Public Schools in the certificate examinations of the Oxford and Cambridge Schools Examination Board, and if all the particulars were accessible it would probably be seen that no other School has done uniformly so well during all these years. But, as it is, sufficient particulars have been published to shew that the Bradford Grammar School is second to none in modern subjects and has few superiors even in Classics and Mathematics, although it has challenged comparison with schools which have been famous for centuries and have almost unlimited resources at their command, and not only has the School been a success in itself, but as Dr. Percival, a high authority, has said, it has helped to accelerate the movement for the education of the upper and middle classes throughout the country by the example it has set.

As regards the future, the main points to be secured to give permanency to this upward movement are—

- 1.—An increased number of Scholarships at the Universities.
- 2.—The foundation of Scholarships linking Elementary Education with the Grammar School. This is a most important necessity, in order to give reality to the proverbial ladder from the gutter to the University. Such Scholarships should be awarded on a fixed principle and should bear a well-defined ratio—say one for every 30 boys who pass the highest standard in any given year.
- 3.—The excellent examinations of the Oxford and Cambridge Board should be stamped with State authority, if that can be done without cramping the freedom which is the life of the Higher Education.
- 4.—Benefactions are needed for the Library, Playing Field, Swimming Bath, Ornamentation of the Hall, and the like. The difficulties under which the boys now labour in their strenuous exertions to maintain good Football and Cricket Clubs, would be materially lessened if a field were now provided. That a Grammar School having the prestige that our School possesses, should be compelled to play its matches in a public park, and should be compelled to refuse many matches because such ground is occupied, is keenly felt by the boys as a disgrace. No more popular act could be performed than the presentation of a ground suitable for the requirements of the School. The more prosperous the School is, educationally, the more important becomes the old adage "A sound mind in a sound body."
- 5.—Boarding Houses should be erected, if that can be done without injustice to the town, and on the understanding that Bradford boys should have the first claim. The latter is a necessary proviso, for with the increasing facilities for locomotion and the growing fame of the School throughout the West Riding, the School may soon be expected to be one of the largest First Grade Schools in the North of England, as it is already a long way the largest in Yorkshire.
- 6.—What is wanted, above all, is a comprehensive scheme for bringing the Elementary Schools, the Higher Board Schools and the Grammar Schools into a common system, with successive steps and connecting links, all working in harmony for the good of the town and of its citizens.

The last ten years shew a marvellous growth in education throughout the country, and nowhere more so than in Bradford. The Girls' School, the Technical School, the splendid work of the School Board are all crowded into these ten years. And in concluding this sketch we may venture to say that the Grammar School, dating, as it does, from the middle ages and having glorious traditions to stimulate successive generations, has renewed its youth in a wonderful manner and claims the regard of the citizens, not so much because of its antiquity, as for the position it has gained in the midst of this great community as the foremost educational institution of the town and neighbourhood.

Horsfall, and the Archbishop readily accepted the nomination.

3. S. C. Lister resigned in 1857 and R. H. Meade was elected in his place, whereupon it was found that Mr. Lister's resignation was informal and Mr. Meade's election was void. It will however be seen that he was elected in 1868 to the vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. Alfred Harris.
